New Orleans is the metropolis of the outh, and will be for years to come. Some people, however, believe that Penecola will some day take the lead. I doubt it-in fact I don't believe it. Nex to New York this is the busiest, most bustling, goshead town I have yet struck; bustling, goahead town I have yet struck; and I have been to Chicago, too. There is more thrift here to the size of the town and the number of people than I know of anywhere. It is true that this is the busiest season they have here, on account of the shipping of cotton. The levee for three or four miles up and down the river is crowded with that greatest of Southern products.

She is 320 feet long; has 10 steel boilers; cylinders 34 inches in diameter with 11 foot stroke; has 200 berths; will accommodate 300 passengers; is 2,027 tons burthen; psys to her crew an average of $2,700 a week, and runs 20 miles an hour up stream. Her trade is on the lower Mississippi.

New Orleans has a population of 250,000, and the ground-on which it stands is as flat as East Wheeling. The drainage is very poor, and the city is necessarily unhealthy.

The Mississippi river is not over a mile wide here. Algiers, on the west side of the river, is the Brooklyn of this city, or the Bridgeport of Wheeling.

It rains here nearly every day for a few hours. Then the sun shines out brightly, and it is as charming as May. It is fully as warm here now as it is in the middle of May in Wheeling.

Oranges, bananze, figs and pecans grow all around here. They are necessarily chesp and fresh.
